

SKIEWARKEE

1958

Della, it has certainly ~~been~~ been a pleasure teaching you this year. I wish that I could have a whole room full of students like you. You ^{are} a sweet & cute girl with a lot of talent.
You would have made a wonderful mother in our little play and you made a lovely slave girl at the Junior Senior. Best of luck in whatever you may do in the future. Love,
Mrs. Cherry

The Senior Class of

Williamston High School

presents. . .

The 1958 Skewwarkee

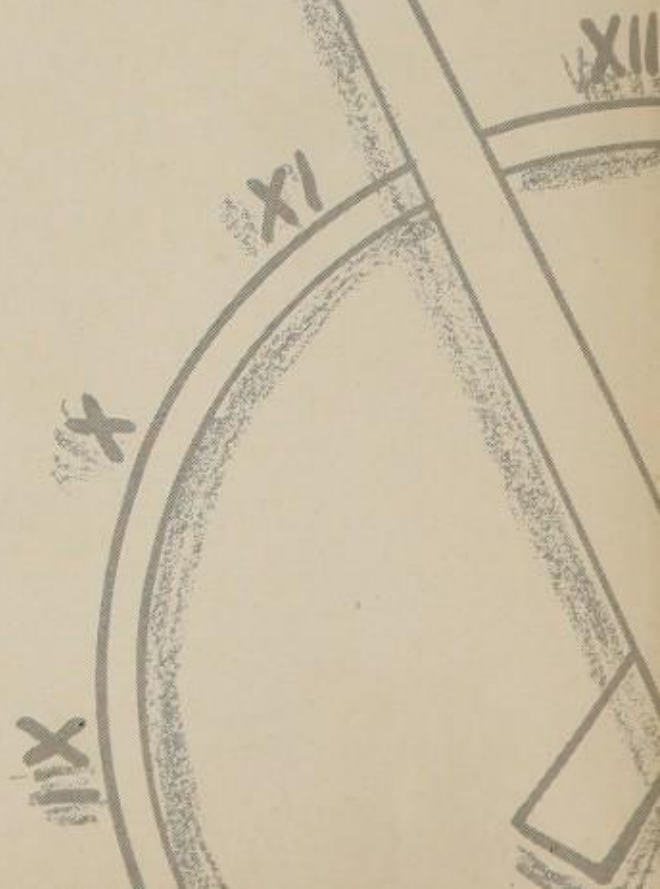

Time. . .

Tempus Fugit—it was only yesterday, or so it seems, that we were freshmen—then sophomores—then the Junior-Senior—and the Homecoming parade and game—then the trip to old New York and at last graduation day.

This year the staff has chosen as its theme—TIME—and we have worked to glean all the little moments of the past years' hours here at Williamston High School.

Our staff members have spent many hours—some happy—some perplexing—to bring you these fleeting moments.

With this edition of your Skewarkee you will always remember the hours you spent in this passing parade—whether they were happy or sad.

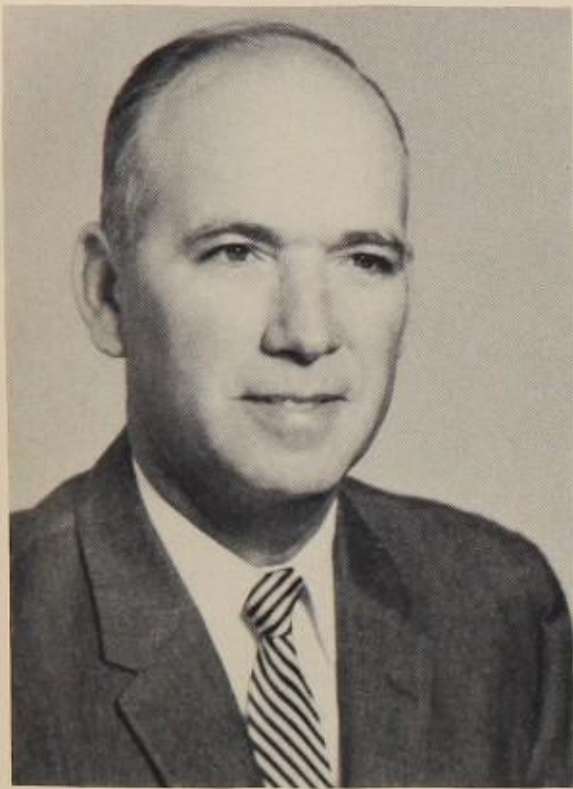

Dedication

Because you have been a good friend, an inspiring teacher, and a wise counselor—because through your personal interest in our welfare—and because Williamston High School will always mean the more to us for your having been identified with it—we affectionately dedicate this, the 1958 Edition of the Skewarkee, to you, Mrs. Lucy Worsley.

Class History

Time has been an important element of our universe for many ages. It has been measured and calculated in many ways and by various devices. Humans find it difficult to envision the march of time before their entrance into this drama of time and space, but they can conceive the swiftness of the passing of the years by watching transfixed the slipping of the sands in the hourglass as the years fade into the Nowhere. Time almost stood still that September of 1946 when we ventured upon our first journey into school life.

The hourglass was set firmly upright on the desk of life as we entered the door of learning. Before that, time was just a background for our lives—unlimited, endless, and stretching to eternity—but now we are conscious of time as a boundary for every activity—time for reading, time for numbers, time for lunch, for rest, and dismissal. And so our 120 adventurers became accustomed to this new world, and when all the sands had slipped to the bottom of the glass, it was time to advance to the second grade and the hourglass was again upright for a new year. It was during this year that we lost one of our teachers, Miss Estelle Crawford, who had guided many little hands in Williamston for more than twenty years.

We continued to learn and soon began studying subjects other than just reading and writing. It was in the fourth grade that we began to think of the geography of the world, the history of ourselves and others, language and arithmetic.

During our fifth year we presented a Latin-American program, in observance of the 60th anniversary of the Pan-American Conference, with each section contributing its talents—music, dancing, costumes, and recitations. Also that year we took part in the special May Day Exercises, with a boy and girl elected from our group to reign as king and queen of the festivities.

As the hourglass was set upright for the sixth time, we found ourselves going for the first time to new buildings and surroundings. Yes, we were now at the old high school building, and we stretched a bit taller as we advanced to our new environment.

The hourglass was turned over for an eighth time. Here we encountered a new concept—a schedule of changing classes with more than one teacher guiding our learning. This was very exciting, having more than one teacher, but we were saddened that year by the death of a fine member of our class, James Boyette.

Entering the ninth grade was high adventure for most of us. Government for us and by us, the Student Council, was reorganized that year for the student body. We were also privileged to have the second class of Farm Life students to join us, and together we developed and grew into one congenial group.

In the tenth and eleventh grades we busied ourselves with a twirp dance, a Valentine Dance, a Junior play ("Willie's Weekend," in which we discovered our acting abilities), selling drinks, sundries, and programs during home football games, trying to raise money for the Junior-Senior banquet and prom.

We had a very memorable Junior-Senior banquet and dance with the theme being "Ebbtide." Again we were saddened this year by the loss of one of our number, Jesse Williams, who drowned.

Our high school years have been blessed with many organized trips and adventures. The band and glee club have entered district and state contests during all four years, and they have received excellent and superior ratings on all occasions. The commercial club attended the State Convention in Winston-Salem for the first time. The Beta Club attended district and state conventions.

Our football teams played some exciting ball games and displayed great strength and ability. Our basketball teams captured the county championships for several consecutive seasons. Our colorful baseball team won the Class "A" State Championship in 1956. We are very proud of the fine sportsmanship and high quality exhibited in our athletic program for the school.

The twelfth year approached and the hourglass was turned erect for the last time. Now we were seniors, with the goal of graduation to achieve. Time seemed so fleeting as we "pushed" our wares at the Saturday morning bake sales, sold tickets and served our big turkey dinner—all for the privilege of visiting the big city, New York. Here again time was so important as we met exacting schedules to view the wonders of this great metropolis. We were indeed grateful for this opportunity.

Then we selected our class rings with black stones in a military finish, and voted on the style of invitations and calling cards, another step toward graduation. We were also busy this year editing the school paper. Members of our class were now leaders in this journalistic project, although many of us had been connected with its function all four years of our high school days. Then, the highlight of this phase of our work was the publication of our yearbook, The Skewarkee.

The sands in the hourglass slip rapidly into the bottom of the instrument. Our high school stay has been filled with much work, high adventure, challenging projects, good fellowship, constructive guidance, and patient cooperation from faculty members and our principal. We have lost many during the years, but those who remain to reach that high goal have grown in knowledge, stature, wisdom, and appreciation of the opportunities afforded young people in our school.

In reviewing our school life, our history is not made up of fabulous tales of adventure and excitement, but we trust it reveals a steady growth to adulthood and a sense of responsibility to take our rightful places in this present world. We are appreciative of the loyal support and love from our parents who have made this history possible and for the guiding influences of our faculty members who have helped us reap these rewards. With a firm faith in a just God we grasp our diplomas this Graduation Day and step forth into a new world as the last grain of sand slips into the bottom of the hourglass.

Class Prophecy

Time waits for no man. It presses onward and onward to the land of tomorrow.

Concerned with what the future holds in store for sixty-three W.H.S. Seniors, I have considered it my responsibility to call upon my extraordinary powers. Being gifted with the ability to foresee the unknown, I now fulfill my humble duty in revealing to you this prophecy for the Class of 1958.

It is the year A. D. 1978. Vaguely in the distance I can discern the outline of a gigantic object that slightly resembles—why, yes, it is a huge rocket ship. Inside, I see two stewardesses, Sybil A. and Pat B., preparing their prominent passengers for the launching.

I recognize up front a very notable group of gentlemen in the midst of a discussion. They are none other than Kenneth G., rocket and missile expert, who designed and built the X-79 $\frac{1}{4}$ in which they are riding. Roy R. and Billy B., "conductors" of the world's largest electronics school in Chicago, and Jon G., author of the current best-seller, How It Felt to Be the First Man on the Moon. Mrs. Bowen, formerly Nancy Lou T., is sporting a diamond almost as large as one of the rings around Saturn.

Seated next to the aisle I see Shelton C., middleweight champion of the universe, who is en route to Jupiter for his bout with the Martian Monster. The champ's manager, David C., is warning him to watch the tricky footwork on Jupiter, since there is no gravity on that planet.

Next I see the business tycoon, Paran W., owner of the Belk-Tyler-Wheeler chain stores. His two private secretaries, Peggy S. and Frances J., are busy giving him a manicure and lighting his cigar.

Over here I see another great athlete, Gaylord P., who last year pitched four no-hitters and clouted 16 home runs to clinch the World Series for the Senators.

Here is Professor Crissie G., math and history teacher at Columbia University in her spare time. Speaking of math, I also see mathematicians Bonnie J., Genie G., and Sally Grey G., who have recently published their theory concerning time and space based on the calculation $2x = 6x \div 3$. A brilliant piece of deduction, if I may say so . . . I see the illustrious engineer, Bill C., who has just constructed the bridge connecting Pluto and its third moon. R. Rawls is on his way there to become director of the Plutonian Highway Patrol.

Near the back I see the President of the American Dental Association, Jimmy C., and his assistant, Pearl P. They are both rather disgusted because they forgot to pack their toothbrushes.

Oops! I almost didn't recognize this suspicious looking character. She is Mary Charles B., F.B.I. counter-counter spy.

Here are Nancy R., Peggy T., Leona C., C. Holliday on the way to the Secretaries' Convention.

Behind a cloud of smoke, I see Guy T., the successful industrialist who is president of and official sampler for the American Tobacco Company. He is entertaining a group of telephone operators, which includes Mary Ola G., Georgia J., Rachel C., and C. Hardison.

I see three ladies, Roberta H., Mary H., and Betsy D., discussing the fashion trends in the Parisian space suits. They are outstanding authorities in the field of home economics.

I see four school teachers, Betty M., Sandra M., Dot M., and Mary Lynn P. They are sitting spellbound, completely fascinated by the popular crooner, Nat King Abernathy.

Interior decorator Boo G. is a bit under the weather, and Dr. Beth S. has diagnosed his illness as a slight case of air-sickness.

I see A. P. G., renowned country and western music singer. Walter W., owner of General Motors, is helping him tune his guitar and get the "squeaks" out of it.

I see housewives Shirley B. and Janie N., who are with their families on a vacation to the Neptunian Riviera.

I see S. M. R., celebrated nuclear physicist, winner of the Nobel Prize for his discovery of Newton's Fourth Law.

I see models Lois W. and Christine R., asking Danny M., television star of "Make Room for Danny," for his autograph.

The distinguished gentleman I next see is Secretary of State R. Reese. He is meeting with the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Admirals Joe M., Jimmy G., Gerald C., and Generals Ralph P., Ray P., Roger M., and Gerald S. Secretary of Agriculture Dail R. is also in on the meeting. Nurses Neoma C. and Betty Jean R. are representing the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

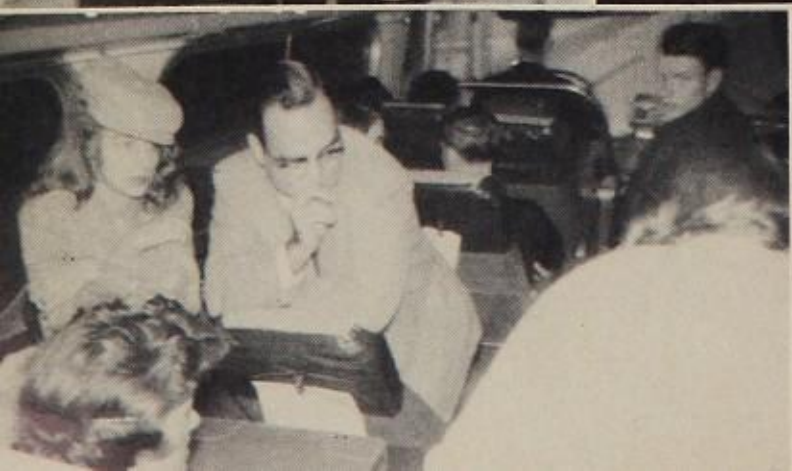

And last I see the award-winning pilot of our rocket ship, Jacy M., who has crossed the sound barrier 197,564,428 times, but has never heard anything equal to the noise that this reunited Class of 1958 is making.

Impossible? Indeed not. It is crystal clear that there are big things ahead for these Seniors. None have known my accurate predictions to fail. After all, I am the great and gifted Madame Quack.

1957 Marshals

Beth Spivey, Chief Marshal; Crissie Gurkin, Betsy Davis, Sally Grey Griffin, Genie Glover, Bonnie Jones, Jimmy Cooke.

Last Will and Testament

We, the Senior Class of 1958, being of sound mind and memory, in a spirit of good will and generosity, and being sensitive of the need of our sterling qualities and invaluable possessions by those who follow us, do hereby will and bequeath these our assets to the members of the Class of 1959.

Lella,

I'll try to "ad-lib" a little on the AD page. I guess you don't think I have much sense - I do it's just hidden real well. We sure had a lot of fun during basketball season - didn't we? Good luck and best wishes to a wonderful friend. I'm looking forward to seeing more of you next year. I hope I am and will remain.

Della,

We really have had many good times together. Remember all those basketball games and trips and band trips. They really were fun. I'm going to miss you very much next year. Be good and do a lot better on the team next year than I did.
I know you'll take my place.
Best wishes.

Love ya!
Bonnie

Della,

Here's wishing you the best of everything for as nice person like you surely deserves it. I have certainly enjoyed being around you this year.
Keep your sweet personality and you're bound to go a long way.

a friend always!
Compliments of

P.S. I forgot one detail! From now on we'll get our homework together! Right? Della, words can't express how much I have enjoyed our friendship together. We've had some really good memories. Our grandchildren will really be surprised to hear that. I sincerely hope our next 2 years in school will be as enjoyable as these last two have been.
Take real good care of yourself. You fill it out. Good, I didn't know I had so many details!

Gella,

It seems that now friendship means more to me than ever and our friendship is one that has lasted no matter how many bumps and knocks its had. These last two years especially have been a time when friendship with an old pal from Farm Life has been most cherished. But I can't stand to talk serious so lets' skip the sentimental stuff and talk about something lighter. It seemed like when we were in the first grade that old man Time was moving about 10 miles an hour but now it seems like he's moving about 100 miles an hour and not even slowing down for the red lights or stop signs. Talking about red lights, do you remember that red light that suddenly appeared out of no where that day we were coming home from the band concert? Speaking of driving and all such things, how about that time that we were riding around after band practice when all of a sudden "Wham!!" I think you know what followed. Now comes the best wishes and I'd like to say them in a special way for one good luck doesn't seem enough to say, so I'll wish you 365 good lucks one for every day.

Forever
a friend
Jeanette
